dedication

Frances Patridge

"I've just come from a place at the lake bottom!" — that is the look on the little duck's face.

Joso

Nearing autumn's close, my neighbor, now — what is it that he does?
Basho

Insects one hears — and one hears the talk of men — with different ears.

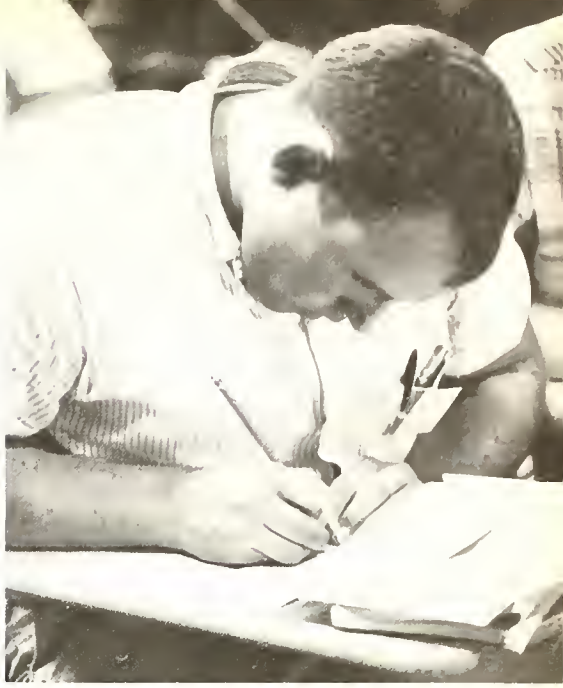
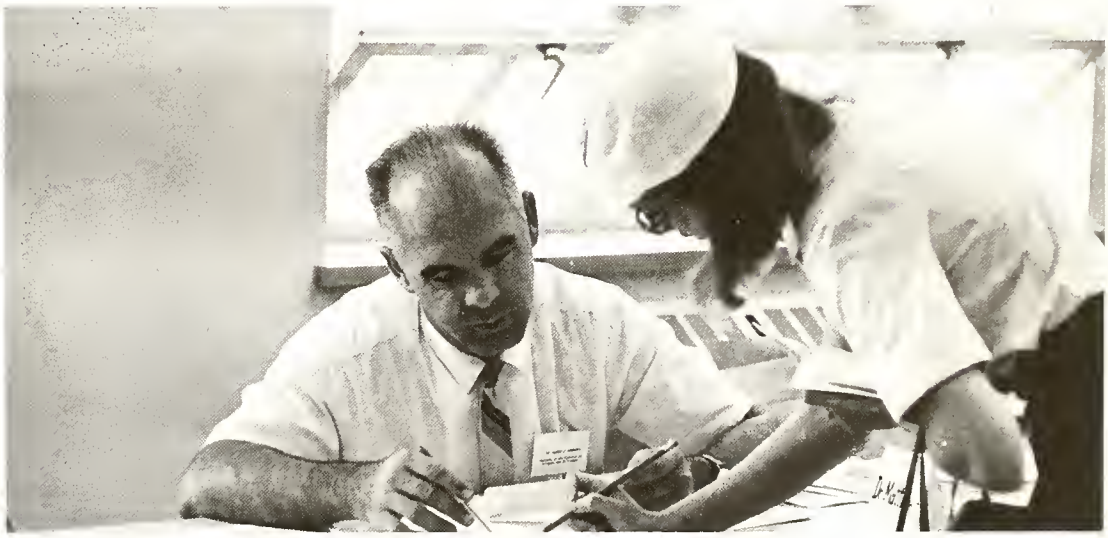
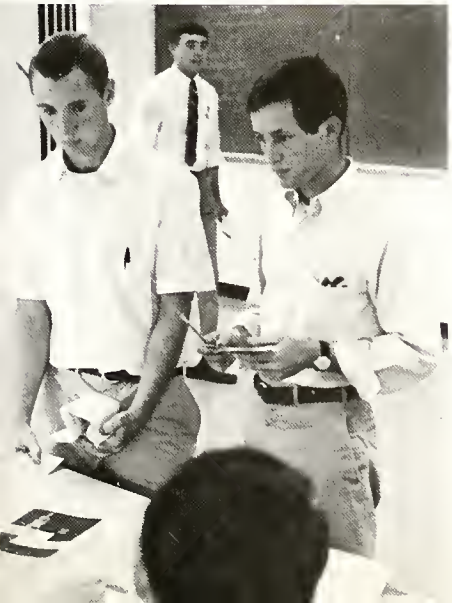
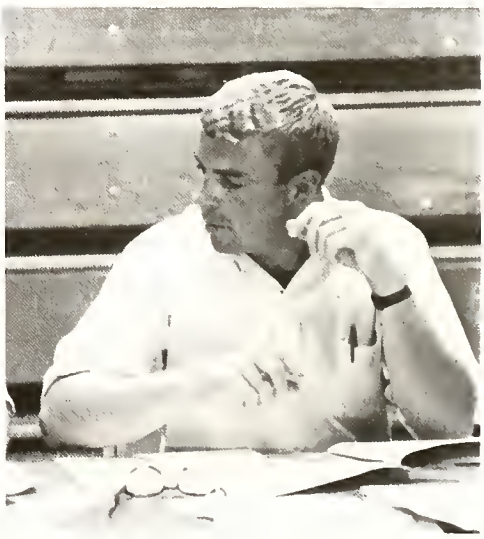
Wafu









A little child:
he starts to laugh, and — autumn nightfall.
Issa

The whole long day he sang, and is unsated still — the skylark.
Basho

The grove in spring:
even the birds that prey on birds are slumbering.
Ranko

This Dewdrop World — a dewdrop world it is, and still, although it is . . .
Issa

Lean frog,
don't give up the fight!
Issa is here!
Issa

Come! With each other let's play — little sparrow without any mother!
Issa

At still-living eyes have they come here to prick?
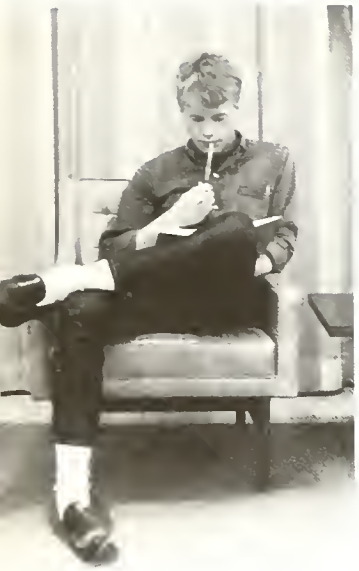
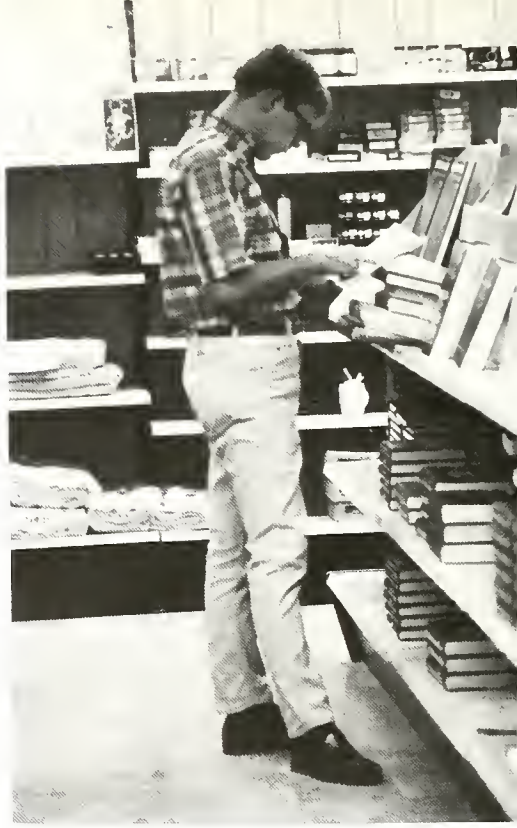
The ever-restless flies!
Shiki





Obedience is here:
even the silent flowers
speak to the inmost ear.
Onitsura

A trout leaps high — below him, in the river bottom, clouds flow by.
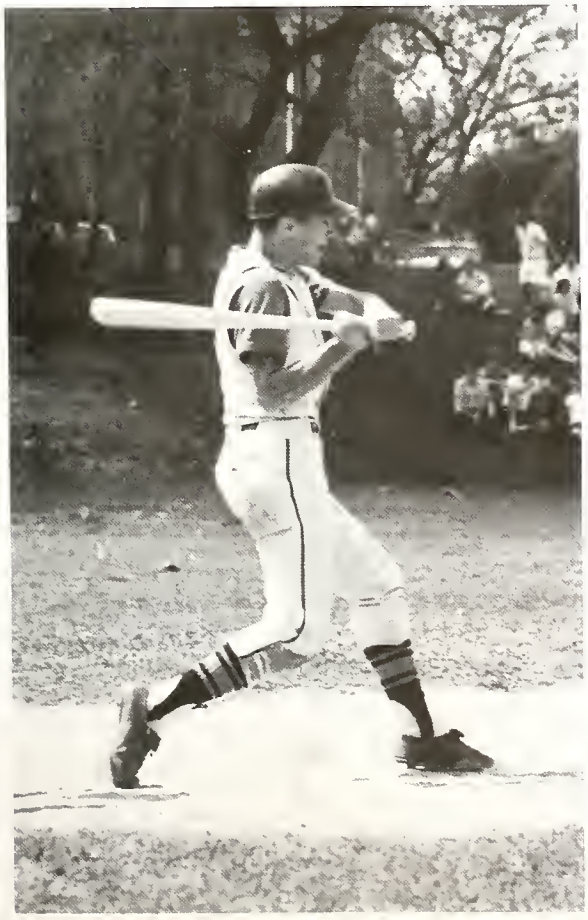
Onitsura



From what tree's bloom
it comes, I do not know, but—this perfume!

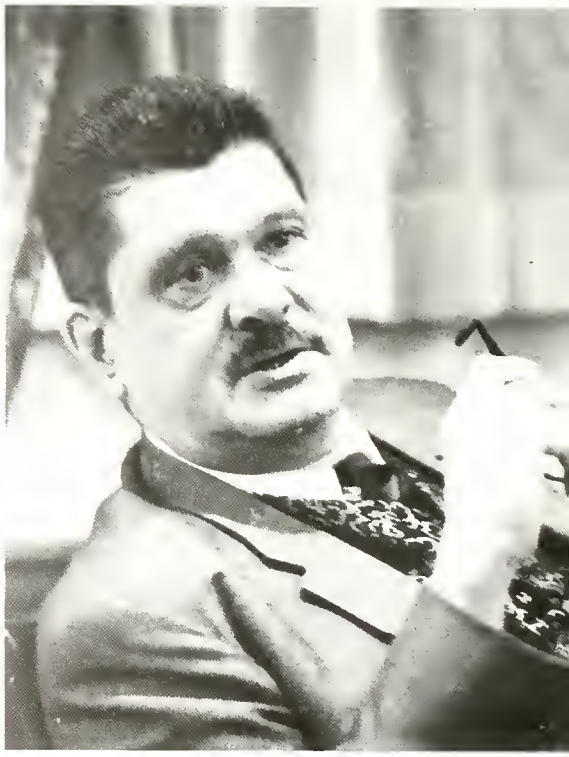
Basho

Sad twilight cricket . . .
Yes, I have wasted
Once again
Those daylight hours.

Rikei



Stubborn woodpecker . . .
Still hammering
At twilight
At that single spot.

Issa

Oh! I ate them all And oh! What a Stomach-ache . . .
Green stolen apples.

Shiki

Immediately . . .
on their spring return tireless swallows zig-zagging.
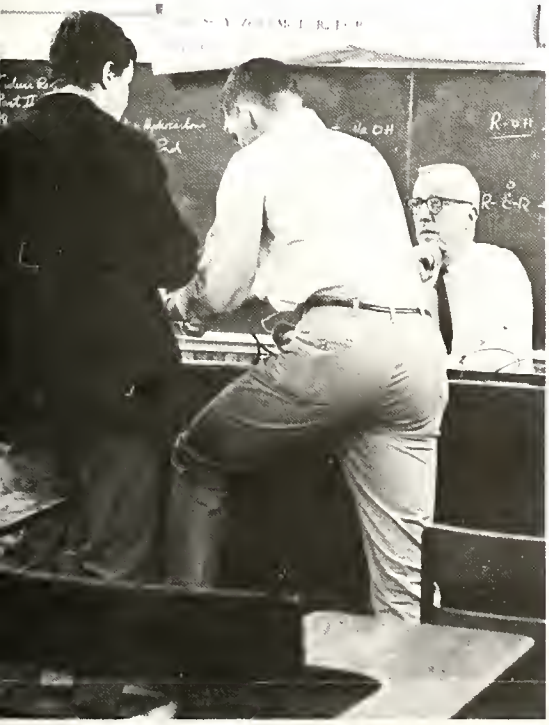
Taigi

Little gray cuckoo:
sing and sing; and fly and fly —
Oh, so much to do!
Basho



Well then, Let's go —
To the place where we tumble down
Looking at snow!
Basho

To ears defiled by sermons —
a cuckoo.
Shiki

Soft snowflakes settle Down on these Unstirring ducks . . .
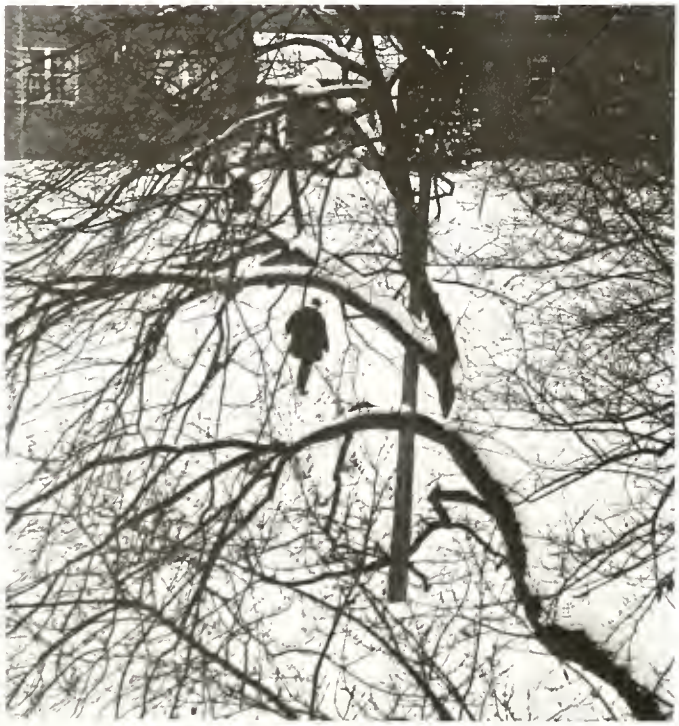
A world of silence
Shiki



Last night a snowfall . . .
Today clear cobalt Heaven and White-mantled pines.
Roka

With all the rains of May in the Oi, I have crossed it!
Pretty clever — eh?
Buson

Springtime rain: together, intent upon their talking, go straw-raincoat and umbrella.
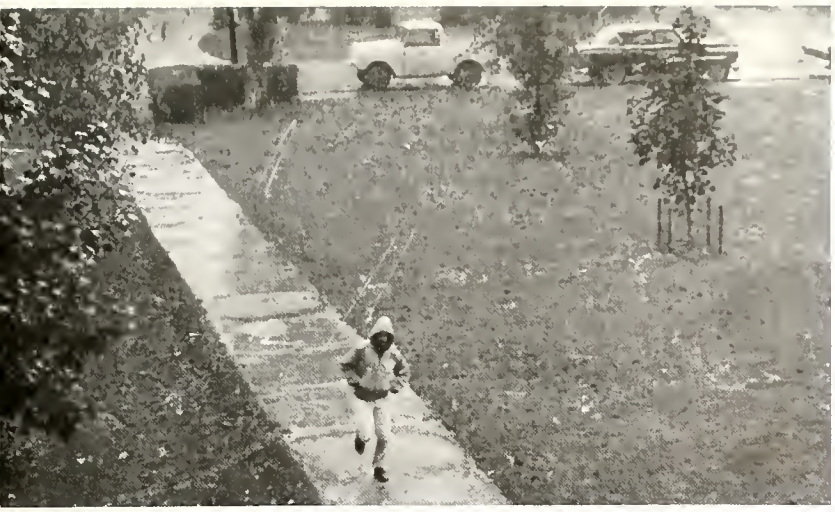
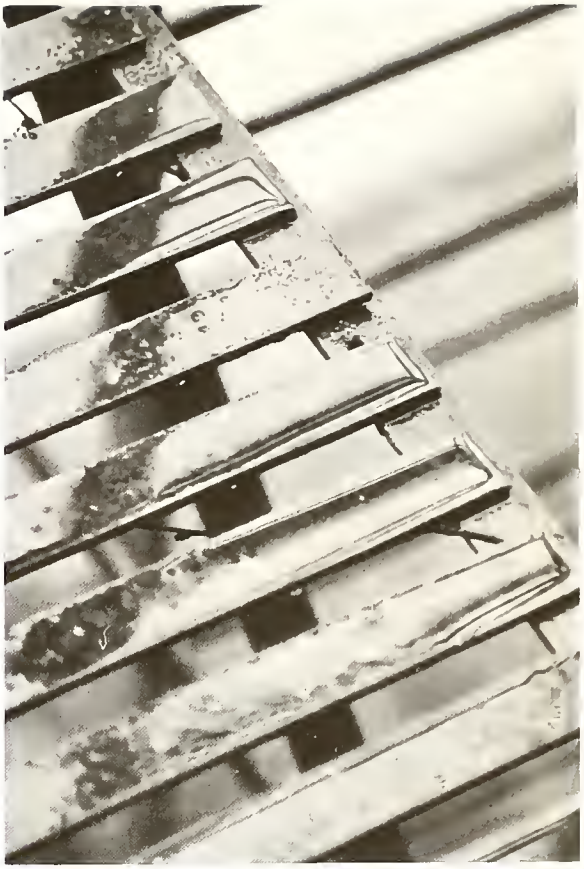
Buson





Not even a hat —
and cold rain falling on me?
Tut-tut! think of that!
Basho

Sleeping, then waking and giving a great yawn, the cat goes out love-making.
Issa

Snow-isolated . . .
Once more I press
My back against My thinking-post.
Basho

Haiku! Reading through three thousand, I have here persimmons — two!
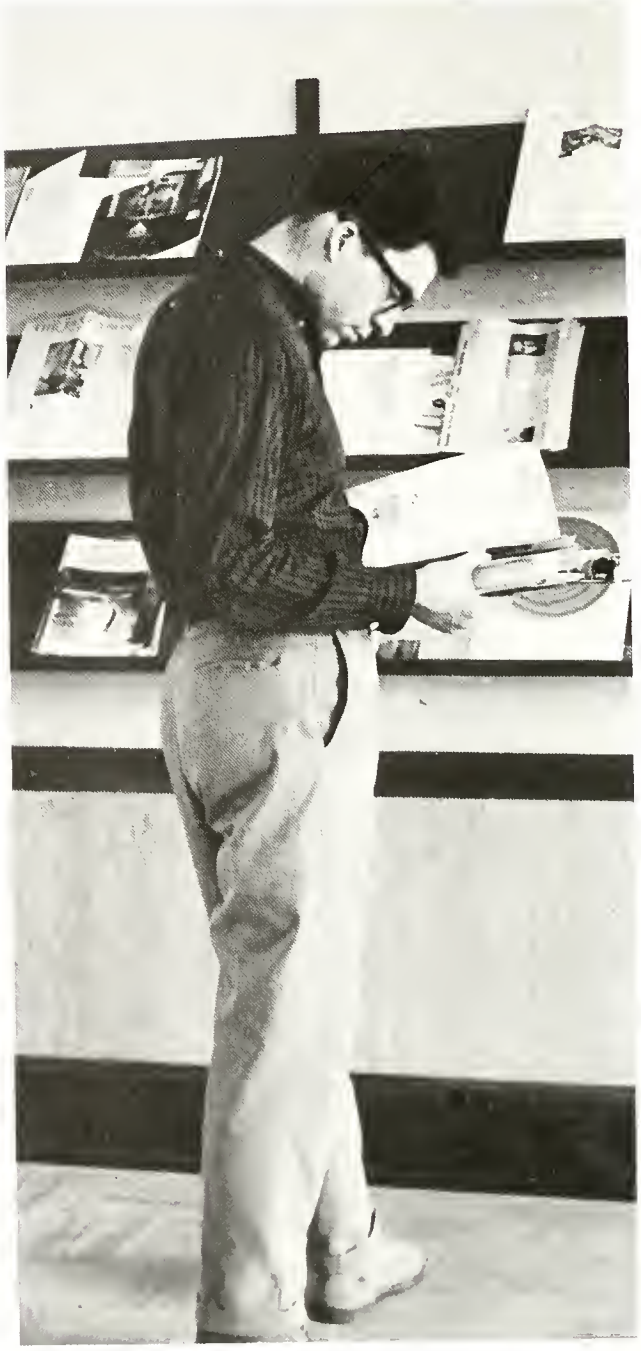
Shiki



4

The moor hens sing,
and to their tempo—look!—the clouds are hurrying.
Issa

Somehow it seems wrong:
to take one's noonday nap and hear a rice-planting song.
Issa

"He who appears before you now—is the Toad of this Thicket."
Issa

Beautiful lady Buffeted by rude Spring winds . . . What Sweet storm you make.
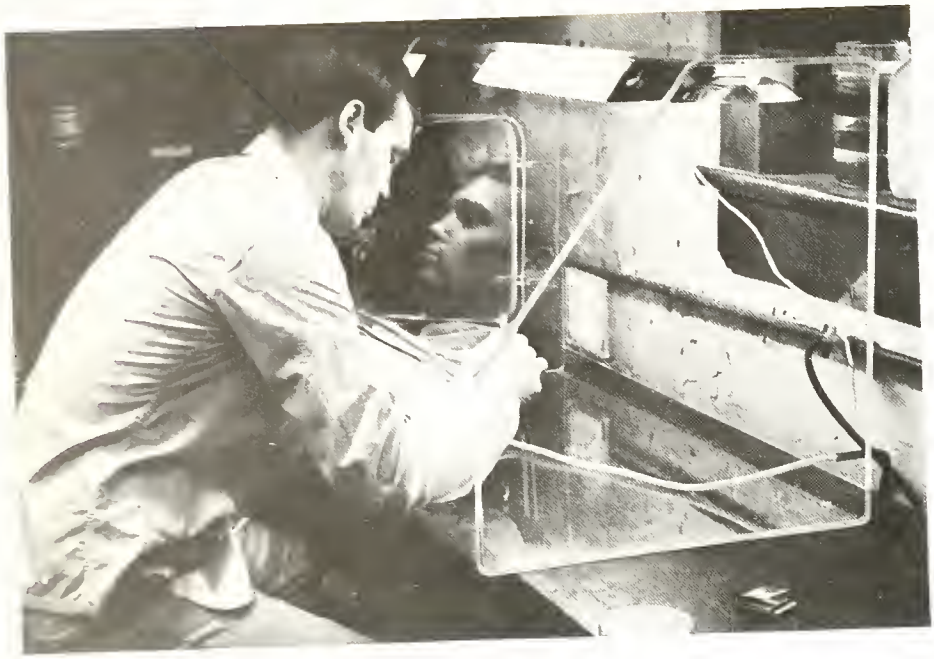
Kito



Experimenting . . .
I hung the moon
On various Branches of the pine.
Hokushi

The dragonfly hunter—today, what place has he got to, I wonder . . .
Chiyo

No you don't! Get out!...
Thus they warmly welcomed me
To their new-year feast.
Rotsu

Floating butterfly
When you dance
Before my eyes . . .
Issa, Man of Mud.
Issa

Now this good sea slug
Has both head
And tail . . . But God Knows which is which.
Kyorai

On how to sing
the frog school and the skylark school are arguing.

Shiki

The days are slow:
there are echoings one hears in a corner of Kyo.
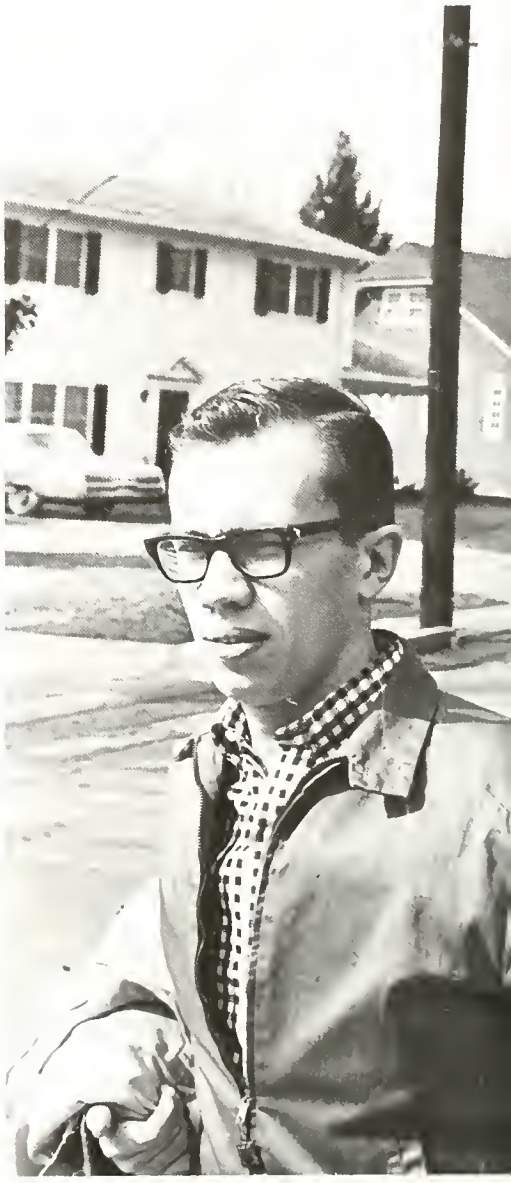
Buson



A day of spring:
a hamlet where not anyone is doing anything.
Shiki

What will may hap
out in the world! — I, turning priest, go to my noonday nap!
Soseki

There are many persons to whom I owe thanks for making this yearbook possible; the Bureau of the Budget for almost remembering to allot us our full quota of pesos; the Publications Committee for not asking any questions; Miss Pat for the compliments; Rick Quist for breaking all records in advertising sales; Coby Palmer for the cover design; the weatherman for the proper number of days of rain and snow for that kind of pictures; the boys of Stevenson Hall for the sarcastic remarks about the camera; Mary Lewis for being an excellent Associate Editor; the complete staff for jobs done; Joyce Hartsfield for questions asked; Ken Chang for trying; to most of the clubs for nearly getting their paragraphs to us on time; to most seniors for submitting their credits; Shiki, Basho, and peers for writing Haiku; the Dean's office for cutting my workship, thereby making it possible for me to exist as a poor artist; Miss Todd for accepting term papers late; Mr. Freeman for reading my philosophy exams lightly; Dick Fatturso for getting me into this mess; my draft board for giving me lots and lots of drive; and G.C.B. for sufficient reason and abundant inspiration.
